A dream road where gay children are,
Back where the laughter rings more gay,
Into the realm of yesterday.

Into the realm now tinged with gold,

Back where the world is peace serene, And the wonderful flowers of the meadow grow.

I smile at the songs so gayly sung.
And sigh at the sound of the school bell rung.
Down through the lane when the day is I meet gay friends on the way to

O lad, as you trudge your homeward

And dream of the man you'll be some day, Your castles fair may tumble down, Your dream man never know renown, But none can touch in the after hours Vandal hands to your gay dream flowers.

Calling each comrade back again Sailing your ship on a phantom main, Treasuring all like a miser's gold Counting each friend as a wealth un-Free as a wisp on the preeze to play,
